

This program requires completion of 30 graduate credits (all courses are three credits unless otherwise designated). The Master of Arts degree requires language proficiency in a second language as determined by the Languages and Philosophy Department. The Master of Science degree requires quantitative competency. Completion of the degree requires a Plan A thesis or a Plan B paper. The department expects students to complete a Plan A thesis. See the USU Graduate Student Handbook for more details on Plan A versus Plan B theses, or speak with the Graduate Director.
